Animal assisted explosive detection

In this study, I would like to present the capabilities of the explosive devices detecting animals and their applications. Over the last decades, as a result of a significant change in the security environment, the need for detection of explosive devices has become more and more important. This demand has resulted in the creation of a number of new technical devices and procedures. Despite the fact that there are number of technical devices in the field of explosive detection, the use of explosive detecting animals has not been lost.
