Weapons of Mass Modernisation

2019. november 22., péntek 10:50 (20 perc)

Yes, the nuclear arms race between the United States and the Soviet Union is over. However, the modernisation of nuclear weapons continues. Experts have started to use the “New Cold War” metaphor, and it’s gaining popularity over new nuclear doctrines and withdrawal treaties. Today, states are currently delivering thousands of warheads on bombers, modernising nuclear delivery systems, pursuing new ballistic missiles, deploying tactical nuclear weapons and violating denuclearisation commitments. The research shall analyse the new concept of the cold war by way of nuclear weapons modernisation.
