Education Provision for Syrian Refugee Children in Jordan

2019. november 22., péntek 16:05 (20 perc)

The Syrian conflict has created one of the largest and most complex humanitarian crises of our time. More than five million Syrian refugees fled the country in order to seek safety in the neighboring countries. As a result, there is high uncertainty about the education of one million Syrian children. This paper attempts to focus on primary school education provision for Syrian refugee children in Jordan and to contribute to the ongoing policy discussions among Jordanian government, donors, and UN agencies to enhance sustained quality educational provision for Syrian refugees in the country.
